New Guines. Must preferred to emigrate to Holland.

Tan-Year Plan

Until World War Two the development of New Guines was left almost entirely in the hands of Catholis and Protestant missionaries. Now the Dutch Government intends to proceed quickly; developments in Asia and Africa today do not allow for the quiet, inturnity pace formerly pursued. An economic, cultural and educational tenyear plan has been worked out. More Papuans will go to study in Holland. The first elections for local councils have taken place, and this year the Government will propose the installation of a Parliament in Hollandis with a native majority. A school has been opened to teach the Fapuans Parliamentary techniques and public administration. The Hollandis Parliament follow.

Holland, it seems will not stand in the way it the self-governing Papuans in ton or twenty years' time favour a Melanesian Union or federation with the sastern, Australian-administered part of

But this force — even with the Neptune PTV-1 reconnaissance planes the Royal Netheriands Navy has bought for use in New Guisse — is not sufficient even to intercept all the little boats used by the Indonesians to infiltrate and start trouble. If war breaks out it is expected that the Hagus will make an immediate appeal to the United Nations. If the Indonesians were not quickly pushed back into the sea, Holland would expect help from Australia and from the United States. Both these countries have a larger ptrategical interest in New Guires than this small country on the North Sea.

As all our readers seem to know, he never did successed in capturing the place. Several even rang us up, obviously feeling that the matter brooked no delay, in a way their indignation is pussling, because even if Acre resisted Napoleon, it fell to practically everybody else who happened to pass this way. Right back in 1800 B.C.E. it was conquered by Thutmosis III, an Egyptian; not very efficiently, because it had to be captured all over again by one of his successors less than two centuries later. Our old friends Ashurbanipal and Arterxerase both had trouble in Acre, and a little later the
